

Aircon Service

Some like it HOT - Everyone else likes AIRCON

How often should I have my car's air-conditioning serviced?

You should get your air-conditioning serviced at least every two years: the system needs servicing just like your car's engine. It needs oil for the compressor, and the filter gets clogged over time. This decreases the performance of the system, and increases fuel consumption, costing you money.

Why does the aircon make my car smell?

This is quite a common problem, which is principally caused by bacteria growing on the AC evaporator. In more serious cases, this can cause allergic reactions like sneezing and coughing.

How do I get rid of the bacteria?

You will need to disinfect the evaporator: An antibacterial substance is pushed through the system, preventing the formation of micro-organisms.

How do I stop this happening?

You should use your air conditioning system for at least ten minutes every month in order to keep it active, and prevent problems occurring in spring.
